Hospital Packing List
During your 3rd trimester, at around the 36-week point, you may want to start organizing and packing the things that you’ll take to the hospital with you. Your hospital may have gowns and socks for you to wear, but you can also take your own, including a robe. It’s a good idea to pack one bag for yourself and one for your baby.

Mom’s Packing List

- Important documents and paperwork
  Driver’s license, military ID, TRICARE or insurance card, hospital paperwork, birth plan (if you have one)

- Two or more well-fitting bras
  In addition, a nursing bra may make it easier to breastfeed.

- Two or more pairs of cotton panties
  Don’t bring your favorite underwear, as they may get soiled.

- Two or more comfortable nightgowns
  If you plan to breastfeed, it will be easier if your gown opens in the front.

- Slippers or slip-on shoes with non-slick soles

- Toiletries
  Shampoo, a toothbrush, toothpaste, lotion and deodorant

- Personal items
  Eye glasses, make up, lip balm, and hair brush, comb, ties

- Loose-fitting clothes to wear home
  You may wear your maternity clothes for several days to weeks after delivery.

- A still or video camera
  Don’t forget to take plenty of batteries, power cords, and memory cards (and film, if needed). Be sure to check with the hospital on its videotaping policy.
Baby’s Packing List

- One “going home” outfit
  This may be the outfit that your baby is wearing for his or her first photos!

- Car seat

- Baby bag
  This should include diapers, a burp cloth, baby wipes, etc.

- Blanket, hat and warm outfit, depending on the weather

Items to Leave at Home

- Jewelry

- Cash or other valuables

- Medications, including vitamins
  Remind your healthcare team and/or hospital staff about the medications and vitamins you’re taking.
